British Headquarters in France, Aug. 26.—British troops yesterday took 1500 prisoners and made further collections of guns, trench mortars and machine guns. Field Marshal Haig's forces swung forward as far as Longueval in their advance north of the Somme.

The Scarpe Sector.—London, Aug. 26.—British troops attacked this morning in the Scarpe sector, east of Arras, and progress is being made, according to the official statement issued at the war office today. The British position south of the Scarpe and west of the Scarpe is being held in spite of a heavy rain which is falling on the battlefield, the statement says.

Capture of Valenciennes.—Favall, a mile and a half northeast of Valenciennes, has been captured, and the British have advanced beyond the village, the statement says. The British line has been advanced slightly in the direction of Maricourt, four miles northeast of Bray, the statement says.

Strong German Counter-attacks.—Strong German counter-attacks north and south of Baupaulme have been repulsed by the British, according to the official statement issued at the war office today. This morning an attack was launched between the Scarpe river at Valenciennes, and the heights northeast of the Scarpe. In a few hours the British made an advance of two miles on a front of four miles, according to a dispatch received here from the battle front.

Counter-Attack Fails.—Paris, J. P. M.—The Germans today attempted a counter-attack on a large scale against the right wing of the British, but it failed. The attack utterly failed.

In Royle Region.—Paris, Aug. 26.—Heavy bombardment in the region of Royle and between the Oise and the Aisne rivers is reported in the official statement issued by the war office today.

Monchy-lez-Reims.—Monchy-lez-Reims, a little less than five miles southwest of Arras, have been taken by the British. The British have made a great advance to the south of the village. In the battle around south of the Somme, General Mangin's French army has captured a prisoner of war, according to today's dispatches. General Mangin's army has made a slight advance between the Scarpe and the Somme. The line of battle is reported to be in the direction of the Scarpe. The line of battle is reported to be in the direction of the Scarpe.

The town of Monchy-lez-Reims, Guenappe and Wancourt were on the Hindenburg line as it stood prior to the German drive on Aug. 21. In the morning the Germans drove ahead slightly but were held up after the second day of the fighting and after that time could gain no more ground. This morning's attack apparently was between the Scarpe river and the Scarpe and adds about four miles to the length of the battle front.

Mystery Vessel and Members of Crew Are Being Well Guarded

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 26.—The steam yacht, Vesie, brought into port late yesterday by naval authorities for investigation, lay at a closely guarded wharf today. No one was allowed to leave the vessel. It was understood that the yacht was purchased at New London, Conn., for $2,500 to replace one of the vessels lost in the raid by submarines on the fishing bank. Patrol boats, which, for a week, have been watching vigilantly, picked her up a few miles outside the harbor. It was reported she had no ship's papers, and about a dozen of the crew, including the captain and two officers, were foreigners. On the deck were piled bags of coal. All the windows were fitted with canvas, which could completely darken the craft at night.

pressure continues all along the southern wing to Soissons, between the Somme and Ancre. General Mangin is pressing steadily toward the western extremity of the Chemin-des-Dames. Unconfirmed reports have been received in the American line, along the Vesie that the enemy is withdrawing north of that river toward the Aisne.

ENEMY DESPERATELY.—Enemy forces are putting up a violent resistance against the British, but to no avail. Since last Wednesday, they have been driven back and have been repulsed in more than four miles on the thirty-six mile front. The greatest allied gain has been 6 miles toward Baupaulme, one of the most important points in the Chemin-des-Dames. The momentum apparently increases in spite of the strong efforts of the Germans to stay the oncoming rush of tanks, cavalry and infantry. More than 17,000 prisoners have been counted and the enemy losses in prisoners are said to be in excess of the British casualties. Unofficially the number of prisoners is placed at 20,000.

GERMANS PUSHED BACK.—On most of the front the British have pushed the Germans from the high ground in the direction of Soissons. The enemy has been forced out of much of the "crater country," making the old Somme battle field of 1916. This has opened up new opportunities for the tanks and cavalry. Allied airplanes continually bomb troops. Concentration and strategy center behind the German line.

THE SCARPE.—The Germans hold on to Baupaulme throughout Sunday in heavy fighting. Gen. Byng's forces, however, are now in Avesnes, a suburb one-half mile northeast of the town. The British have advanced to the north, and are reported in Thillois, one mile and a half south-west. The fall of Bray, which once was a German stronghold, has enabled the British to press on eastward, and they are reported in Suzanne, two miles to the east and at the edge of the swamp country which lines the Scarpe.

MAY UPSET PLANS.—If the enemy has counted on gaining the Hindenburg line and there finding a rest, the extent of this extension was in dispute today between Wet and Dry leaders.

When the senate convened under a long standing agreement to take up the time prohibition, Senator Shepard, of Texas, prohibition advocate, moved temporarily to lay the measure aside. It was agreed to and the man power bill was resumed with passage late today or tomorrow expected to expedite and simplify procedure.

The house bill was substituted for the measure which has been pending in the Senate. The Senate military committee met before the senate convened and reported the house bill with amendments, after adding the senate amendment, including the "work or fight" proposal. The Senate committee struck out the amendment of Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, adopted by the house, providing for appointment of special examiners by the Provost Marshal General, to reclassify men in existing deferment classes. This amendment, the committee agreed, would cripple authority of state draft boards, and is unnecessary, because General Crowder already has power to make any reclassification he deemed desirable.

Curtail Remarks.—Members of the house today were urged today by Representative Barnhart of Indiana, chairman of the joint congressional committee on printing, to curtail the extension of remarks in the congressional record, in view of a shortage of paper which might make it necessary for the President to commandeer stocks to get out government publications. The committee had met earlier in the day and authorized the warning.

MAN POWER BILL WILL BE RUSHED

NEW DRAFT AGE BILL GIVEN CLEAR TRACK IN SENATE WHEN PROHIBITION BILL IS SIDE-TRACKED TEMPORARILY.

TO CURTAIL REMARKS

Representative Barnhart of Indiana Requests That Members of the House Curtail Remarks Owing to Shortage of Paper.

Washington, Aug. 26.—A clear track was given in the senate today to the man-power bill passed Saturday by the house broadening the army draft age to 18 and 45 years.

Want to Rush Bill.—The prohibition bill was temporarily side-tracked today in the senate in favor of the man power legislation and also to give time for the negotiation between the opposing sections. Senator Shepard of Texas, manager of the prohibition bill stated following a recent conference at the White House that the President did not object to action by congress on the legislation, but discussed extending the effective date of the restriction. "Additional time, the President was said to feel, should be given anyone interested or involved in the liquor business to close up their affairs including banks holding bonded warehouse certificates. July 1, 1919 was the new date suggested.

That time also should be afforded for social adjustment was said to have been suggested by the President. Would Not Interfere.—The new date it was said would not interfere with the collection of revenue and a void redrafting the war revenue bill which is based on estimated returns of about 900 million from liquor taxes. Senator Shepard said the bill's passage is certain, but that prohibition advocates undoubtedly would agree to some extension of time. The extent of this extension was in dispute today between Wet and Dry leaders.

End Debate.—When the senate convened under a long standing agreement to take up the time prohibition, Senator Shepard, of Texas, prohibition advocate, moved temporarily to lay the measure aside. It was agreed to and the man power bill was resumed with passage late today or tomorrow expected to expedite and simplify procedure.

The house bill was substituted for the measure which has been pending in the Senate. The Senate military committee met before the senate convened and reported the house bill with amendments, after adding the senate amendment, including the "work or fight" proposal. This amendment, the committee agreed, would cripple authority of state draft boards, and is unnecessary, because General Crowder already has power to make any reclassification he deemed desirable.

Curtail Remarks.—Members of the house today were urged today by Representative Barnhart of Indiana, chairman of the joint congressional committee on printing, to curtail the extension of remarks in the congressional record, in view of a shortage of paper which might make it necessary for the President to commandeer stocks to get out government publications. NEW DRAFT AFFECTS NEARLY 3,500 MEN IN THIS DISTRICT

MAN POWER BILL EXPECTED TO PASS IN CONGRESS THIS WEEK WILL TAKE LARGE NUMBER FROM COUNTY.

PLAN WIDE PUBLICITY

General Crowder Arranges to Carry Message of New Registration All Over Country by Many Mediums.

With passage of the army man-power bill practically assured, the local board is now making preparations for the registration of men between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years, which will be held probably September 6th. It is probable that the voting machinery will be used for this registration, which will add over three thousand names to the list of registrants in this district.

General Crowder says that within ten days after the bill becomes law he will be ready for the registration. He had wanted to hold it on September 6th, and it is expected that this will not be far from the date to be fixed. He also expects to be ready to begin calling the new registrants to the colors for entrainment to camps within sixty days after the bill becomes a law. Approximately 13,000,000 men are now registered as compared with 9,688,500 enrolled in the great registration of June 5, 1917.

Between the time the bill is signed by President Wilson and the day when the registration is held it is General Crowder's purpose to carry to every man affected by the change in age limits, the message that he must register. Wide publicity will be given the registration so that a 100 per cent record may be obtained. Besides the news information conveyed in the ordinary way through the newspapers, all of the 100,000 post offices and 56,000 railroad stations will be placarded with posters. These posters, made up in the form of four page newspapers, will go into all mail bags. On the first will be messages from President Wilson, Secretaries Baker and Daniels and other officials, calling upon the nation to respond. On the back page will be instructions for the registration and the two inside pages will spread the announcement of the registration date and the ages and which carry legends, posters will be posted in subway and "L" stations, between five and six million hand bills will be scattered along the lines of the railroads, and the two inside pages will spread the announcement of the registration date With the summer vacation nearing its end and practically every school and college in the country is preparing to continue all branches of athletics, bringing many military features which bring the thought that the sports will be a pronounced change in sports affairs.

Many of the games, which have been only a moderate interest for years but which have been kept in the list for many years, will give place to contests of a military nature. Grenade throwing, bayonet duels, with blunted bayonets, and scored on a point system, obstacle races with military coats involved are only a few of the possibilities.

Definite rules governing these new contests will be laid down by college, state, and national officials to standardize the new games.

Many of the instructors who will be teaching these games after the war will be men who have seen service at the front as athletic instructors if not in the actual fighting forces. One can readily see how these instructors will put the well known potato races and similar games on the shelf and substitute a real live combat game. The wand drill undoubtedly will be retired. The bayonet drill will appeal more to young Americans. One can readily see how a variation of the wigwagging system will be used to advantage in place of the wand or dumbbell drill. The regulation army setting-up exercises undoubtedly will be used in gymnastics universally.

Military drills probably will be held in schools all over the country, too, even after the war. The boys like things military. These drills, with things military, sham battles and marching will get the youngsters out into the open more.

Summing it all up the inauguration of these military events will do much to increase interest in athletics. And good clean, wholesome sport for the coming generation is more vital than ever before in the nation's history.

Every season in big league baseball develops at least one real "find." Nine times out of ten the man who acquires the title is a youngster who really came up from the bushes unheralded and unsung.

But this year the crown ought to go to a veteran, a man who has starred for years and then apparently slipped toward oblivion.

That man is Josephus Wood, former Red Sox pitcher now with the Cleveland Indians.

Owner Dunn signed up Smokey Joe two seasons ago with the belief that he still had a lot of games left in his budding arm. Joe's war had gone hard on him but Dunn believed months of careful training and working out would bring it back again.

An entire season "failed to turn the trick. Then Manager Fohl announced that this season Wood would be used in the outfield or infield in emergencies.

At last his chance and his batting was so spectacular that Fohl kept him in the game as a regular. Woods' fielding proved accurate and his batting won a dozen times and a half dozen games for the tribe.

These facts and the fact that Joe showed a wonderful spirit, comparable in any player when he knuckled in any play, earned him a regular berth on the ball club, earns him the title of "find."

Tyrus Raymond Cobb has taken the examination for a commission in the gas and flame division of the U. S. army. We admire Cobb's spirit in volunteering his services for his country. He is now Cobb's bat will help him in a job like that. We wish did want to see Tyrus in action at the front with something he could handle like that old willow war club.

Catcher Art Wilson of the Boston Braves never started the baseball world with his brilliant play. He just played a cut above the game and gave it the best he had.

Art's sort of an easy going gent. When came the first registration for the draft, Art hadn't thought about his age for some time and when the "come to register Art got twisted and thought he was just under 31 instead of just over the draft age. So he registered with his home board.

While ago he woke up to the fact that he was over 31. Art went up to the board to tell them of his mistake. They thought possibly he might want to have the error remedied so he wouldn't stand a chance of being called.

"Oh, let her go the way she is if it's a little with you," said Art. "I'm no better than anyone else and if I'm called I'll go."

Ed Sticking, Giant recruit, is given credit for having the strongest whip on the team, if not in the National League. A baseball field contest was staged recently in Boston in connection with the war savings stamp drive. A throwing contest was on the list of events. The contestants threw from center field toward home plate. When Powell of the Braves hurled the ball over home plate and against the grand stand the crowd yelled and the judges figured the contest was as good as over.

Then Ed wound his hand around a ball and cut loose. The ball sailed over home plate and over the grand stand railing. It cleared the first row of boxes and landed in the second. Ed said if he hadn't thrown it a little bit wide it would have gone farther.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Gloria May Josephine Swanson (and she owns up to every bit of the name) is another of the bathing-suit, dimpling slap-stick comedy girls who decided that throwing pies was not what she entered the movies for and so she told somebody about it and that somebody believed her, and there you are.

Now Gloria Josephine is playing emotional parts and is throwing fits instead of pies. Now we don't blame Gloria one bit for deciding she would rather act instead of strut before the camera in a bathing suit for she really can act.

Miss Swanson was born in Chicago in 1898. She received her schooling in Porto Rico. Then at the tender age of eighteen she was married. After her marriage she entered the motion picture career. It seems that her parents were rather opposed to the saga but that hubby wasn't.

She went into pictures with a vengeance, playing with Essanay, Universal, Keystone, and Sennet. Paramount. It was the Triangle people who decided to let her try emotional acting and "We Can't Have Everything" was her first picture with a real dramatic part.

Gloria is a little brown haired girl with blue eyes and she is quite a home body even if she does want a career. She lives in Los Angeles and "just loves" to fuss around the house and get meals.

HERE AND THERE

Fred Stone, who claims never to have lost a spangle or stubbed a toe from his canvas top to his footlight days, wrenched a wrist and acquired a few bruises in rehearsing for his first Aircraft photo play. He fell twenty feet from a camera platform while watching Donald Crisp prepare to shoot "Under the Top."

Ethel Clayton, a recent recruit to the Paramount forces, will have Mrs. Pickett's role in the photo play version of "Leah Kleschna." Elliott Dexter and Theodore Roberts will be among those present in Miss Clayton's support.

Sidney Chaplin, business manager for his brother Charlie, has decided to become a photoplay star. Early in the fall he will begin the making of a series of comedies in which he will be the star.

The Pathe Film Co. announces that they have 2,030 stars in their service flag. More than 200 of its employees have died on the battlefield, and more than 500 more have been decorated for bravery.

ensign in the naval aviation service. He has been with a dirigible balloon corps and is going to France as a dirigible pilot.

Which reminds us of Hank Gowdy, now an officer in the gas and flame division of the army. Hank was unknown until he bobbed up in the world's series and proved the hero of the big games one season. Hank took his honors modestly. The applause failed to disturb the easy going Hank.

They even say that when someone asked Gowdy what he was going to do with his world series money he drawled:

"Well, I'm going to have a good glass of beer for one thing, and then I'll be the first big leaguer to volunteer for service."

Which goes to show that these easy going chaps we see in sport as well as in other walks of life, have just as much fire stored away in them as some of these temperamental creatures who continually kick up a fuss or the fellows who break into the limelight through their brilliancy.

The good old "red white and blue" runs just as deep in the veins of the Gowdys and Wilsons as it does in the other fellows.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt, considered one of the greatest women tennis players in the game, says that a set or two of tennis every day will cure many of the ills and imaginary ills of women. Molla seems to be rather healthy herself, which would tend to prove that she has the right dope.

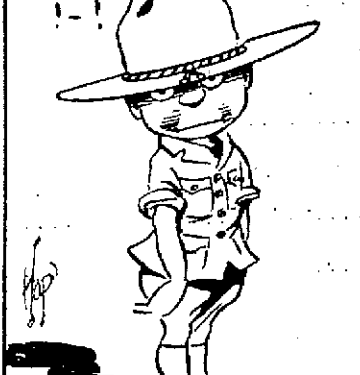

Robert Bescher has returned to major league company. He is playing with the Cleveland Indians. Bescher isn't a spring chicken. He celebrated his thirty-second birthday last February and has been playing professional ball since 1896. He became a member of the Cincinnati team in 1903 and remained with them until 1913, when he was traded to the Reds as part of the Herzog deal.

Bescher didn't shake under McGraw's management and was sent to the Cardinals two years later. He was released last spring and went into the American Association, where he soon enjoyed a second time on earth. The Clevelanders have engaged him as an emergency outfielder.

Forty-two young men in the northern half of Rock county who became twenty-one years of age between June 5th, 1918 and August 24th, registered Saturday at the local board office, and were given their questionnaires to have filled out at once by members of the legal advisory board. The number of new registrants was eight less than was estimated by the board. In the southern half of the county fifty-six names were added to the selective service roster, including four negroes and four aliens. No aliens or negroes registered in this district Saturday.

At just ten-thirty o'clock Saturday night the following telegram was sent to Provost Marshal General Crowder at Washington by Major E. A. Fitzpatrick of Madison, state draft administrator.

"Wisconsin adds to her honor roll today 4,361 registrants. These men will be classified and available for the September call."

The provost marshal had previously estimated that Wisconsin would register 4,391 and when the Orthodox Jews and Seventh Day Adventists who observe Saturday as the Sabbath register on Monday, it is expected the estimate will be reached. As in both former registrations the local board filed its total very shortly after nine o'clock p. m.

Vernon county it is believed established a record which was surpassed by any other board in the state. At nine-thirty the board reported fifty-four men had registered, filled out their questionnaires, had been physically examined and classified by the board. The Madison board had the largest registration, with eighty names.

PETEY DINK—THE FORK SAVED PETEY'S LIFE, BUT HE'LL GET HIS NOW.

Love in a Hurry

By GELETT BURGESS

Illustrated by Ray Walters

Flodie read her indecision, and, behind her account book, delighted in it. She had, however, little time to watch, before the door opened and Carolyn Dallys, trim and debonair, sauntered into the room.

Now here was a chin that was lifted naturally, with none of Rosamund Gale's affectation of superiority. Carolyn Dallys was sure of herself. It was much easier to fool her than to fool her. Her eyebrows were arched whimsically over her high-browed aquiline nose; her eyes always held a humorous spark.

"Oh, how d'you do! Thank you for telephoning me, Miss Fisher. I was so anxious to see those proofs. I ran right over," she drawled amiably at Flodie, and smiled, in remembrance of their forenoon's encounter. She could hardly face anything seriously enough to bear resentment. Then she gave Rosamund a careless glance, modified only by that quality of interest which a brunette always gives her blonde-haired sister, and bowed slightly. Rosamund frankly stared.

"Mr. Bonistelle in?" Carolyn inquired carelessly.

Flodie replied that he was away on important business, but that most of Miss Dallys' proofs were ready. Would she wait till the last two had been printed? In point of fact they had been done a half-hour ago, but for Flodie's plan, Carolyn and Rosamund must be left alone together. It was her opening experiment in psychology.

Yes, Carolyn would wait, and began to roam about the office idly, hands in coat pockets, chin up, whistling softly. Rosamund, from the detector, noted way in which she was going through the pile of photographs, intended to wait also. She would see what some of these women were like, who came to see Hall Bonistelle. She had already appraised Carolyn—not pretty, consequently not dangerous; still it would do no harm to watch her. So Flodie left them, but saw to it that the stockroom door was not quite closed.

The situation was tense; it held potential conflict. Flodie, listening from the stockroom, waited eagerly for the first shot. There was, however, a little preliminary skirmishing necessary; neither of the two foes had yet recognized the presence of a rival.

Rosamund, with beauty's contempt for mere brains, had retreated to her inspection of the photographs, when a careless gesture sent some dozens of the prints slipping, sliding, falling to the floor, with an expression of annoyance she stooped to pick them up. Carolyn watched her. When two or three handfuls had been returned to the table, and Rosamund, listless and restless, had taken a new pose, one picture remained at her feet. Carolyn good-naturedly walked over and picked it up, then looked at it, smiling. Rosamund became intrigued at once.

AFTER SICKNESS

Mrs. Page Tells How Vinol Restored Her Strength and Stopped a Cough. Brooklyn, Conn. "I was laid up for me week, run-down and with a cough for which I doctored for six months without getting better. A friend from Virginia asked me to try Vinol. It healed my cough, gave me a good appetite, I slept well and felt well and strong." Mrs. Thomas Lane.

"Wonder who it is. D'you know?" "Mrs. Roydton. A friend of Mr. Bonistelle." Carolyn's lip had the slightest curl, in her eyes was a subtle gleam.

"Oh!" Rosamund gave it another look, and added dutifully: "Mr. Bonistelle seems to have a good many friends!"

Carolyn was frankly amused; enough to say, "Oh, yes; in fact, I'm one, myself!" She gave a sharp woman-to-woman glance at Rosamund.

"Indeed?" Rosamund's little smile was acid. She drew herself up. "Well, then, when it comes down to it, so am I." The two women's eyes flashed like crossed rapiers.

"We certainly ought to be friends, then," said Carolyn, shrugging her shoulders. There was but the faintest trace of mirth in her tone, not enough for Rosamund to register; but the hostility underneath Rosamund perceived, oh, easily enough.

"Perhaps you think," Carolyn went on, smiling, as Rosamund was silent, "that that's a good reason for our not being friends."

This was in the modern mode; but frankness was not at all the game that Rosamund played best; wherefore she hastened to protest. "Oh, no, indeed! Why should you think that?"

Carolyn laughed; she was now thoroughly enjoying herself. "Well, then, I'm Carolyn Dallys," she volunteered. "I think you must be Miss Gale, aren't you? I've seen Hall's pictures of you, you know." Something suspicious in Rosamund's face impelled her to add mischievously, "And he's often spoken to me about you."

Rosamund showed her irritation at the patronizing air of familiarity only by the slightest frown. "Indeed," she said, "it's queer he hasn't told me about you."

"Oh, there's very little to tell." That was what Carolyn's lips said, but her whole face told a different story. In the woman's language of smiles she was an adept and Carolyn's smile was cruel.

It was now evident that, unless Rosamund could distinguish herself from the vast horde of Hall Bonistelle's female friends, she would expire of shame. Carolyn, without knowing exactly what caused the girl to suffer, was rejoicing in her lack of ease. She watched Rosamund grope for an effectual reply. At last it came with a proud toss of the blonde head and a flash of the golden brown eyes.

"Oh, I see," she said. "I didn't know by the way you spoke first, but perhaps you know him pretty well. Of course Hall and I are quite good friends, you know."

"Yes?" Carolyn was more attentive. "Not that I've known him for such a long time. I don't mean, exactly; but—well, we're quite intimate."

Carolyn gave her a keen look, but did not show that she was particularly affected. "Really? Why, I rather understood he was interested in someone else."

"Oh, no," said Rosamund placidly. "Of course, you understand, I have a right to know, you know."

"Why, no, Miss Gale, I don't know that I do know, you know." She drew her chair up to Rosamund and sat down deliberately. "Would you mind telling me what particular right you have?" Carolyn, at last, had dropped her banter. This was straight from the shoulder.

"Oh, I can hardly go into that," Rosamund said softly, satisfied by her victory.

Flodie, behind the shelter of the door, hugged herself in delight.

All the starch went out of Rosamund's pose. "She is?" She gazed at Carolyn as at a zebra.

Carolyn shrugged her shoulders and gave a casual glance at the proofs. "Oh, Miss Fisher," she said, "would you mind printing another one of each of these two? I'd like to send them to my mother, and see which one she likes better." She handed them back to Flodie. "I'll wait," she added, her eyes on Rosamund.

Rosamund added, "I think I'll wait here a little while, too, Miss Fisher. Miss Dallys is really so very interesting."

Flodie smiled. "Well, all right, Miss Gale, I knew you'd like her." And she disappeared.

Carolyn, who had been walking up and down impatiently, now approached Rosamund. "See here, Miss Gale," she said, "I'd like to know when Hall Bonistelle proposed to you."

"I fall to see how it is any of your business."

"No? Well, then, I suppose I shall have to tell you. The fact is, Hall Bonistelle has just proposed to me."

"Why, Miss Dallys, you must be joking!" Rosamund stared, dumfounded. "Why, it was only this morning he spoke to me—"

"What time?"

"Why? Does the particular minute make any difference, I'd like to know, Miss Dallys?"

"Yes, as it happens, it makes all the difference in the world, Miss Gale. Mr. Bonistelle proposed to me at about—let's see—ten-thirty, I think it was."

Rosamund met her eye to eye. "Well, he proposed to me at exactly a quarter to eleven. I noticed the clock."

"Oh, did you! I didn't; but I'll take your word for it. Narrow escape, wasn't it?" Carolyn's laugh was hard and mirthless.

"But I never heard of such a thing in my life!" Poor Rosamund stared blankly at her rival.

"No," said Carolyn dryly, "it doesn't happen often. I hope; but there's no use in getting excited about it."

"Excited!" Do you mean to say you'd accept a man who had treated you like that?"

"No, Miss Gale, candidly, I wouldn't. And, between you and me, I don't mind telling you I wouldn't accept him under any circumstances. I never had any idea of accepting him."

Rosamund flinched, but recovered to sneer. "Well, then, what answer did you give him, I'd like to know!"

Carolyn was, for a moment, non-plussed. "Oh," she replied, finally, "I didn't want to throw him down too hard, you know. I said I'd let him know later, so that I could break it to him gently."

"Exactly. So did I!" Rosamund, triumphant, scrambled upon Carolyn's lifeboat. "But I don't intend to break it to him very gently, after this!"

"No," Carolyn reflected grimly. "We ought to make it just a little hard for him, don't you think? We might even torture him a bit—if possible. The question is, how to do it." She contemplated Rosamund, musing on revenge.

"I don't understand it at all!" Rosamund complained. "Why in the world should a man act like that?"

"My dear Miss Gale, I don't know. But I do know that it's just like men. You never can tell what they'll do. You think you know them—you think you're perfectly safe—years go by and they're perfectly human and rational—and then—piff! They explode. No woman yet has ever solved the mystery."

Dinner Stories

"And have you always been a clerk in a bank?" asked the strong faced woman at the back door.

"No, no, ma'am," was the seedy one's reply. "I used to be a drug clerk up in Maine."

"And why did you give up that occupation, pray?"

"Well, you see, ma'am, since woman's rights have been established I couldn't stand the ladies coming up to the soda fountain and winking at me."

A farmer went one day to buy a bushel of buckwheat for sowing. The man who sold the grain was away, and his wife waited on the customer. She took a peck measure and they went to the granary. After filling the measure twice she poured the contents into the bag and began tying it.

"But," remonstrated the farmer, "it takes four pecks to make a bushel!"

"Oh, does it?" returned the woman, untying the bag. "You see, I never had any experience in measuring grain before I was married. I always taught school."

A woman of intellectual tastes found it difficult to remember all the facts she collected. She therefore secured the services of a professor of one of the best memory systems. Scarcely had the professor taken his departure after a successful fire lesson, when a loud double knock was heard at the front door.

"Who was that, Mary?" the lady inquired of the servant.

"Oh, if you please, ma'am," said Mary, "it was the memory man; he forgot his umbrella."

The Itching and Sting of Blazing, Fiery Eczema

Seems Like the Skin Is on Fire.

There is a harassing discomfort caused by Eczema that almost becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible, because such treatment can only ally the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source.

The source of Eczema is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most successful treatment for all skin diseases is S. S. S. for this remedy so thoroughly cleanses the blood that no impurities can remain. Get a bottle today at any drugstore, and you will see results from the treatment. Wonderful Opportunities For Young Men and Young Women

This Critical Epoch In the Nation's Life Has Brought a Very Peculiar Situation Affecting Young Men and Young Women

Thousands of responsible positions have been made vacant by the enlistment of young men for military service. These places must be filled, and it follows that they must be filled by younger boys, by women, or by men too old for military service.

Manifestly, men too old for military service are too old to adapt themselves readily to new conditions and new positions, and these thousands of places are therefore open to younger men and to young ladies.

When the war is over, there will be plenty of positions for everybody, for America will be called upon to rebuild the world and to re-establish it industrially.

Somebody will take advantage of this extraordinary situation—somebody will enjoy the advantages of these exceptional positions—somebody will lay the foundation for big business careers.

Who Will This Somebody Be?

The boy and girl who have the foresight and the good judgment to start their courses now—to enroll with us Tuesday, September 3, and to work vigorously, earnestly, and intelligently to complete their courses in the shortest possible time.

Not only are there thousands of positions open in private business enterprises, but the Government is offering unusual inducements to young people to take positions in Civil Service—beginning salaries range from $85 to $100 a month with almost sure appointment for every candidate.

Now, the vital question—the question for you—the one you must decide—right now—is whether you are going to take advantage of this decidedly unusual situation or whether you are going to drift along and let somebody else get the good position, the good salary, and the good opportunity for promotion that you ought to have.

Think it over today and be guided by your good judgment—not by the inclination that you may have to do the easy thing instead of the profitable thing.

Remember the date, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3. If you have not had full information regarding our school and its ability to serve you in a superior way, write to us, but whatever you do, don't delay—procrastination is the lubricant that makes the way to failure extremely smooth.
